Breakthrough Treatment For Arthritis and the other conditions shown

A number of vets have been using a new remedy for arthritis and many other animal conditions and the signs are more than encouraging.

The treatment Serrapeptase, an enzyme dietary supplement originally found in nature but now grown in yeast.

This amazing enzyme has been successfully used on humans, without side effects for 25 years. This new animal treatment does not require a prescription and is a fraction of the cost of conventional medicines.

So far they have been giving the supplement to fewer than ten dogs, all severely affected with arthritis and all in a great degree of pain. There have been no side effects and pain relief has been almost total. Being a dietary supplement rather than a drug means a possible breakthrough for arthritis sufferers both animal and human.

Serrazyme (Serrapeptase), an enzyme derived from non-animal sources. A controlled fermentation of the bacterial strain Serratia sp. T-1 secretes this enzyme in a medium. The enteric coating of the tablets protects the enzyme from inaction in the acidic medium of the stomach.

We have now introduced enteric coated granules in capsules. This is of great benefit for treating dogs, cats, children and those unable to swallow, as they can be mixed. Serrazyme is a stronger saseinolytic (fibrinolytic) agent than any other known alkaline neutral protease such as chymotrypsin, bromelain or pronase.

The medicinal effects of Serrazyme identified clinically are:

1. Lung, sinus and other mucus problems
2. Pain problems of any kind
3. Inflammation (after surgery, injury etc)
4. Mastitis
